

FIFTY THOUSAND BY 1920, SLOGAN OF BOOSTERS AT GREAT BANQUET

Get-together Spirit Pervades
Atmosphere of Commercial
Club as Speakers Outline
Plans for Future.

NOTABLE ADDRESS IS MADE BY CAPT. REID

Frank A. Hubbell Emphasizes Importance of Feeding, and Many Others Discuss Needs of Rio Grande Valley.

A membership of 500 for the Commercial club within the next twelve months and a population of 50,000 for the city of Albuquerque by 1920. These were the two objects determined upon by nearly 250 enthusiastic Albuquerqueans at the big get-together dinner held in the Commercial club hall last night, and the vim and vigor displayed by the diners left no doubt that both objects would be attained if they were in the reach of human possibility. The dinner was one of the most spontaneous expressions of popular enthusiasm ever witnessed in Albuquerque. It brought together men of almost every walk of life in the city, all of them imbued with the one idea of putting forth the utmost effort for the upbuilding of the city, the county and the state.

The dinner was served in the double room on the east side of the building, the desks and chairs in the reading room and the tables in the card room having been removed, the folding doors thrown open and long tables extending all the way from the parlors to the billiard room. Capt. Clark A. Carr, president of the club, presided as toastmaster and was unusually happy in his introduction of the speakers. He also held the closest attention of all present with his historical review of the activities of the club since its organization twenty-five years ago.

Schuler Leads Music.
The booster orchestra furnished excellent music, and Roy E. P. Schuler, the greatest booster of them all and the greatest booster-leader that has ever shown his face in Albuquerque, led in the singing of some inspiring songs of his own composition. The menu cards placed at each place contained copies of these songs, and the banqueters joined with zest in the singing of them.

The presentation of a handsome banner to the club by the Women's club, and the reading of a letter from Mrs. Margaret Medler, president of the latter organization, in which good wishes for the success of the club's undertakings were expressed, was a pretty feature of the opening exercises.

A letter from H. St. J. Wilson, assistant director of the office of public roads and rural engineering of the United States department of agriculture, to President Clark A. Carr, stating that his office would agree to furnish an engineer to supervise survey and prepare plans for drainage work in the Rio Grande valley provided a drainage district were organized and other expenses of the survey were paid by the citizens, was read by Secretary Tom Kean and was greeted with enthusiastic cheers.

Reid Makes Principal Speech.
President Carr opened the speech-making by giving a brief review of what the club had done during the twenty-five years of its existence and outlining the plans that it has for the future. He showed that the growth of Albuquerque had gone in parallel lines with that of the club, and that the periods of the greatest activity of the club were the periods of greatest prosperity for the city. His address was listened to with the closest attention and was a gem of thought and delivery.

The principal address of the evening was made by W. C. Reid, general solicitor of the Santa Fe railroad. Mr. Reid is a recent acquisition to Albuquerque, having come here from Boston about a year ago to take up the duties of the office vacated by the late Judge A. L. Wadlin, but he showed as a group of the local situation, as well as of conditions all over New Mexico, that is possessed by few men who have spent their lives in the state.

That Albuquerque is by reason of its geographical location, necessarily the metropolis of New Mexico, and that whatever affects the state for good or bad will necessarily affect Albuquerque in the same way, were Mr. Reid's opening statements. He took an optimistic view of general business conditions, and declared that in his opinion the federal reserve bank had made it impossible for such another panic as took place in 1907 to occur. The entire state is prosperous, he said, and Curry, Roosevelt and other eastern New Mexico counties were cited as proof of this assertion. Live-stock, asserted Mr. Reid, is now bringing a better price than ever before in the history of the state and there is every reason to believe that prices will be maintained for many years. The same thing he declared to be true of the sheep industry.

Road to San Juan.
Mr. Reid devoted particular attention to the need of better railroad facilities as the most important step in developing the resources of the state. He spoke of the wealth of the San Juan valley, locked up in a far corner of the state, which only needs a railroad to bring it to the outside world, and declared that the greatest connecting Albuquerque with the Farmington country would be the greatest possible boon to the state.

The speaker attached the greatest importance to the University of New Mexico as a means of developing the latent resources of the state, and he favored the establishment of a bureau at that institution which would have for its purpose "the careful detailed investigation of some of the big things that are still left unknown in New Mexico." General advertising, he believed, was not so advantageous as advertising of a special character—the sort that would bring to the attention of the man specially interested in iron manufacture the iron industries of the state, and to others the information in which they were similarly most interested.

Mr. Reid also spoke of the necessity of beautifying the city as a means of attracting the attention of visitors and also of making our own people happier and more comfortable. "It pays in dollars, and it pays in pleasure and health which dollars cannot buy," he declared.

From beginning to end Mr. Reid received the closest attention of the big crowd present. His speech was frequently punctuated with applause, and at the conclusion of his remarks he was given a genuine ovation.

Boyd Makes Rousing Talk.
Dr. David R. Boyd, president of the University of New Mexico, was the next speaker. Dr. Boyd was never in better form, and his heaters were kept to the highest pitch of enthusiasm throughout his address. He gave his hearty approval to what Mr. Reid had said about the service to the state that the university could render, and declared that the business man of the present day, in order to succeed, must be educated. He was greeted with hearty laughter and cheers when he said that the newcomer to Albuquerque should be made to buy a cemetery lot, so as to insure his staying here. He favored home markets and home institutions, and said that it was a great wrong for the New Mexican to buy goods outside the state when he could get as good or better here at a lower price.

R. W. Wiley, secretary of the public committee of the club, was next introduced. Mr. Wiley made a strong appeal for an increased membership for the club and for a strong pull to pay the institution out of debt. Following Mr. Wiley, A. B. McMillen spoke for the cattle interests of the state and told of the great good that is sure to come to Albuquerque from the holding of the cattlemen's convention here next March.

Hubbell on Feeding.
Frank A. Hubbell, the next speaker, made one of the really notable addresses of the evening. Mr. Hubbell spoke of the importance of the sheep and cattle industry to the state. Being the largest sheep raiser in the United States and one of the largest in the world, he was in a position to give more accurate information in regard to that industry, and quoted figures to show the vast importance of sheep raising to New Mexico.

Mr. Hubbell went vigorously into the question of feeding, a matter to which he has given special attention in recent years. He told how money could be kept at home and employment could be given laborers by feeding lambs here and shipping them di-

PUTNEY PUTS UP $10,000 TO COVER DEFICIT; MAKES REPORT AND SENDS IN RESIGNATION

to write his report upon. However, the paying of the 1914 bills in full is impossible in view of the financial condition of the city at the present time. A total of $924.55 has been paid on the 1914 account, and while the commission did not desire to settle the bills, either for 1914 or 1915, until after the fair was over, it was found that some of the accounts would have to be paid in order to act support for the 1915 fair that was absolutely necessary. While this amount of the 1914 bills paid, there is left a deficit from the 1914 fair of approximately $2,000.

At a meeting of this commission held on Saturday, October 16, 1915, H. H. Betts moved and C. A. Schuler seconded that subscriptions still due the fair be collected at once, even though it would be necessary to sue the delinquent subscribers. It is desirable, perhaps, that such an action should be forced upon this commission, but we feel that it is to the interest of all such enterprises to impress upon the minds of subscribers that payment of their subscriptions will be expected and required.

With the reading of this report to the public, the resignation of President R. E. Putney, of the state fair, goes to Governor W. C. McDonald. Trusting that the 1915 state fair may meet with the same hearty support from the public as has been rendered the 1914 state fair, we ask to be to the people of the state of New Mexico.

Yours truly,
R. E. PUTNEY,
President.
H. H. BETTS,
Vice President.
C. A. SCHULER,
Secretary-treasurer.

Itemized Statement.

An itemized statement of the receipts and disbursements of the fair commission is attached to the report. This statement was made by the Gail-Fill-Mossman company after a careful and painstaking audit of the books of the commission, and is as follows:

SCHEDULE "A"

32. Gate	500.00
33A. Total ordinary expenditures 1915 fair	$34,792.09
34. Construction of barns, stables, pens, labor and material, tearing down and replacing tents, etc.	9,182.69
35. Release of horse (featherweight)	25.00
36. Lumber purchased from Whitaker	5.00
37. 1914 fair bills paid	924.58
Total disbursements to date	$44,929.36

(Applied Exhibit "A")

The item of $19,491.92 as shown on Schedule "A" (subscriptions and donations) is $10,000 more than the amount actually collected on subscriptions raised during the subscription campaign, and was a deposit of the president of the commission as per his guarantee that all legitimate bills on account of the 1915 fair would be promptly paid. All future collections on subscriptions, refunds from any sources, after settlement of any minor accounts which might materialize, should be applied to reduce this account.

From a comparison of items 31 A, schedule "B", $34,792.09, and total receipts for 1915, item 14, schedule "A", less $10,000 above referred to, $24,792.09, shows that there would have been only a small deficit if any, if a sufficient state fair grounds had been available.

rect to market, instead of sending them to other states to be fattened as is the system at present. Since should be installed on every ranch he given adequate winter feeding. He spoke with earnestness and power, as a man who had studied the subject thoroughly and had strong convictions, and aroused his hearers to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

Other speakers of the evening were R. L. D. McAllister, who represented the press, Senator Isaac Barth, who made one of his characteristically humorous addresses, Nestor Montoya, J. B. Herndon, Col. D. K. B. Sellers and Dr. D. C. Twitchell.

HENRY FORD, AUTO MANUFACTURER, OF DETROIT, IS HERE

The second genius of national reputation to pass through Albuquerque within little more than a week was Henry Ford, automobile manufacturer, of Detroit. Thomas A. Edison was the first.

Mr. Ford arrived late yesterday afternoon on delayed Santa Fe train No. 2, which did not arrive until 5 o'clock. He and his party had a private car on the rear of the train. They have been at the California expositions and are en route to Detroit. Mr. Ford said this was not the first time he had seen Albuquerque. However, all that he has seen of the city has been from trains or the station, never having stayed here for any great length of time.

ASKED STRANGER FOR AID AND GOT STOLEN TROUSERS, HE SAYS

Tony Romero yesterday explained to Justice Craig how he came into possession of eight pairs of trousers which A. O. Bachechi & Co. said, were stolen from their store. A man, whose name he did not know, gave them to him when he asked for aid, Romero told the court. He was given sixty days in jail.

UNION LABOR NOT TO BLAME FOR TIMES TRAGEDY

Prosecuting Attorney, After Schmidt Jury Is Completed,
Begins Statement of What State Expects to Prove.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LIAISON WORK.)
Los Angeles, Nov. 10.—Matthew A. Schmidt, for whom a country-wide search was instituted after the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building, five years ago, and who was arrested less than a year ago, was placed on trial for his life here today in connection with the death of one of the victims of the explosion. After weeks of unobtrusive efforts to obtain a jury, attorneys for the defense and prosecution succeeded today in obtaining a thirteenth juror who will sit in the box and vote only in the event of illness of one of his colleagues.

Not Crime of Union Labor.
In his opening statement to the jury, James W. Noel, of Indianapolis, special prosecutor, said the state was not charging union labor with the crime, but merely "individuals who happened to belong to the executive committee of one of the unions."

"We will show," he continued, "that these men stole $26,000 from the treasury of the Iron workers and used it to promote a series of crimes all over the U. S., the most distasteful of which was the one with which we are concerned here today. We will prove thirty-four of these explosions by the men who played the explosives."

Mentions Labor Leaders.
The speaker described various explosions and mentioned prominent labor leaders, among them Frank C. Webb, of New York City; Michael J. Curran, of Philadelphia; and John P. Barry, of St. Louis, each of whom was at one time a member of the executive committee of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers; E. J. Clancy, of San Francisco; and John T. Butler, of Buffalo, N. Y., vice presidents of the same association, and Anton Johansen, of San Francisco, organizer of the states trades building council.

Five were mentioned as witnesses who testified that they actually set many of the explosions.

Men Who Confessed.
They were Otis E. McManis, who turned state evidence when J. J. McNamara and J. B. McNamara were tried for dynamiting the Times building here; George E. Davis, of New York City, an iron worker, who is alleged to have produced thirty explosions in the east in 1908 and 1909; and Charles J. Smith, at one time business agent for the local iron workers' union in Cleveland, Ohio.

Objections were made by Nathan C. Coglian, chief counsel for the defense, to the recall by Attorney Noel of explosions in eastern states "outside the jurisdiction of this court and which were made the subject of a conspiracy charge by the government and tried two years ago in Indianapolis."

He contended that they were not remotely connected with the case at issue, which, he declared, was not a conspiracy case.

Continues to Object.
The objection was overruled by the court but later when the names of Clancy and Johansen were mentioned he registered further objections.

He asked if it was to be understood that all these forty or more conspirators "conspired to kill Charles Hagerty, the victim of the Times explosion named in the indictment."

"That sort of a statement," he declared, "can not be permitted. We can not make this case top-heavy with a fantastic conspiracy that already has been tried in the federal jurisdiction. These matters are not relevant to this case at all. We can not be saddled with the sins of forty defendants and all the men, who, at one time or another, may have indulged against capital."

Again Overruled by Court.
Attorney Noel declared the prosecution would make these relevant and the objection again was overruled.

At another time, when a similar objection was made at the use of Johansen's name, the court asked At-

THIN OLD DIRECTORY OF 1883 EVIDENCE OF GROWTH OF THIS CITY

Joshua S. Reynolds, veteran banker of the southwest, has an interesting evidence of the growth of Albuquerque during the past thirty-two years and a prophecy of what the city may be at the end of seventeen years from now. The evidence of what the city has done in thirty-two years is shown by a comparison of the 1915 city directory with that of 1883, shortly after the Santa Fe railroad had come here and not long after Mr. Reynolds had engaged in the banking business in this city. The directory of 1883 looks a good deal like one of Noah Webster's blue-back ed spellers, but in its introductory there is nothing lacking of the most spirit.

Mr. Reynolds says very few names in that directory are to be found in the present city directory.

The prosperity of what may be found here seventeen years hence is in size of a city directory of Denver, which Mr. Reynolds has, for the year 1886. The Albuquerque directory of 1883 is just about the size of the Denver directory of seventeen years earlier, and the assumption is that if the proportion is carried out, Albuquerque, in 1900, will be about the size of Denver today.

CHARLES BOREN'S BID TO EXTEND DIVERSION WORKS IS ACCEPTED

The county commissioners yesterday afternoon accepted the bid of Charles A. Boren to extend the Barabas breakwater. He was the only bid.

Mr. Boren agreed to drive twenty-five piles for 1905, using the county's pile driver.

District Attorney M. T. Vint directed by the commissioners to dismiss the suit brought by them against the Permatex company to open a road through the Terphate Montana tract.
